

Every place has a story.

The neighborhood, told by its people.

A wiki-style shared page where everyday notes become new narratives of a place.

THE STARTING POINT

We share streets.
We experience them differently.

Kiez Notes explores a shared narrative for residents, newcomers and visitors—across perspectives and languages.

One Kiez. One shared page.

Anyone there can add the next note.

Like a wiki, no single contributor owns the visible state.

Each new note goes on top of the stack and replaces what everyone sees. Only today's latest note is public.

Anyone can read. Writing requires a fresh location check and a nickname.

TODAY · LATEST NOTE · VISIBLE

“The canal is full of people.
I stayed for the music.”

Illustrative note

Earlier notes stay stored for the Chronicle.

Today's notes become a shared narrative of the day.

A DAY'S PERSPECTIVES

"The music drew me in."

"I wished for a quiet walk."

AI CHRONICLE · "I," THE NEIGHBORHOOD

"I held the music that welcomed some, and the wish for quiet that others carried."

THE ARCHIVE

Past days, retold.

Browse summarized
Chronicles of earlier days.

One English story per day, with translation and audio on demand. The aim: preserve contrasting moods and uncertainty.

Illustrative notes and Chronicle excerpt. Demo archive stories are labeled editorial fixtures; daily scheduling is pending.

People don't need to share a language to share a place.

English

Deutsch

Türkçe

العربية

Español

01

Find a Kiez

Explore the map or search.
Read the current note.

02

Leave a note

Write or record.
Review, edit, then publish.

03

Return & listen

Explore past Chronicles.
Translate or listen on demand.

Gemini · Transcription, language detection, translation and speech.

OpenAI · Chronicle extraction, writing and review.

A changing present. A shared memory. New narratives.

Every note offers another perspective.
Together, they give a place a story.

Explore → kiez-ten.vercel.app

THE PROTOTYPE

Four Berlin Kieze.
Hamburg's HafenCity.

No accounts, profiles,
likes or followers.

WHAT COMES NEXT

Multilingual review, narrative grounding, smoother audio and daily scheduling.